Welcome to the Society of Clinical Psychology's Inaugural Conference: The Future of Clinical Psychological Science!

We are delighted to extend our warmest welcome to you all on this momentous occasion – the inception of the Society of Clinical Psychology's Inaugural Conference: The Future of Clinical Psychological Science!

The central theme of our inaugural conference speaks directly to our vision of progress and transformation. Our conference goals include: Exploring Emerging Trends: Exploring the scientific foundations, novel approaches, innovative interventions, and pioneering research that will shape the field's trajectory in the coming years. Harnessing Technological Advancements: Examining the role of technology in clinical and health psychological science and explore how these innovations can enhance assessment, treatment, and research. Ethics and Inclusivity: Engaging in thoughtful discussions about ethical considerations, cultural sensitivity, and inclusivity in clinical practice and research to ensure that our field remains ethical, equitable, and compassionate. Professional Networking: Creating a vibrant environment for professionals, students, and enthusiasts to connect, collaborate, and build lasting relationships that will further propel the field's growth.

Our Mission

SCP promotes the integration of clinical psychological science and practice in education, research, application, advocacy and public policy. We invite students and clinical and health service psychologists at any stage of their career to make us their professional home.

Our Conference Vision

SCP (APA/Division 12) is a leader in defining empirically supported psychological treatments and assessments. The goal of this inaugural conference is to convene professionals and trainees who are passionate about this area for a weekend of dialogues about the future of clinical psychological science and the opportunities and challenges that lie ahead.
