This indispensable volume in the series has been meticulously crafted to address the nuances of diagnosing, assessing, and treating panic disorder and agoraphobia, using the latest interventions derived from cognitive behavioral therapy (CBT). Designed as a brief but comprehensive resource for treatment providers at all levels, this book gives a description of panic disorder and agoraphobia, reviews well-established, empirically derived theories and models, and guides readers through the diagnostic and treatment decision-making process before outlining a detailed 12-session treatment. Each chapter offers practical guidance, specialized insights, and adaptable strategies to tailor the treatment to individual patients. The step-by-step approach, detailed case vignette, and worksheets will enable practitioners to feel confident and competent in empowering clients to overcome their often debilitating fears and reclaim their lives. This is an ideal text for clinical psychologists, other mental health professionals, and students.

“[This book] is a concise, practical, and complete hands-on guide to understanding and effectively treating this challenging clinical problem”

Robert L. Leahy, PhD, Clinical Professor of Psychology in Psychiatry,
Weill-Cornell Medical College, New York, NY
